TRAVELING MAN "GOT GAY" WITH THE WRONG MAN.

Meant His Remarks as a Joke, but Sleepy Individual Whom He Had Abused Could Not See It That Way.

A Columbus traveling man tells of an unusual and humorous experience on the road down in south Georgia a few days ago.

A salesman had been working that section and found business fine. Cotton sales had been good and the folks had money to buy his commodity and did buy. So, his work over and an envelope stuffed with orders mailed in the post office, he felt in extraordinary fine spirits when he boarded the train to go to the next town.

The train started off and the salesman stood on the back platform, smoking a good cigar and surveying the scenery with great satisfaction. A rather shiftless looking individual was leaning against a post near the track, a hundred yards or so from the depot. The train had gathered considerable momentum and was going fast when it passed the post.

The salesman was in extraordinary high spirits and his good humor had to vent itself some way; and it expressed itself in this most unusual manner. When the rapidly-moving train passed the shiftless-looking man the traveler leaned off the platform, shook his fingers in the other's face and in the course of two or three hilarious seconds gave him his complete industrial and personal history in terse, crisp phrases. The traveling man was smiling, and if the citizen had but known it, his apparently derogatory remarks were really an expression of overwrought good nature and satisfaction with the world, but the sleepy-looking man couldn't see anything in it but malice of the most astonishing and unexpected kind.

To the traveling man's astonishment, the sleepy-looking man, galvanized into life, started down the track at full speed after the train, now going quite fast. It was apparently an unequal race and the man on the platform was lightly amused, although admiring the other's pluck and endurance. In two or three minutes, however, he was surprised to find the speed of the train lessening, and as it did so the runner made another spurt. In just a little bit the train came to a dead stop—the engine always paused to get water there, although this passenger was, of course, unaware of that fact. The Marathon runner in the rear arrived in time to jerk the traveler off the platform. The classiest kind of fight followed, but when the traveling man managed to climb back on the platform as the train started off again, he had two well-black eyes and his new suit was sadly torn, while the gentleman whom he had decorated with several titles a quarter mile back down the track, had found and was utilizing another post and seemed in a state of perfect content.—Macon Telegraph.

Predicts a Simple Religion.

"When the war is over we are going to have a simple religion, a religion without frills," the bishop of Steger said, addressing those who took part in the second procession of prayer and intercession service arranged by the Church League for Women's Suffrage in Hyde Park. "No frills," he added, pointing, amid laughter, to the frills on his own sleeves.

"We shall want a religion that will hold us together. We have had a great deal too much of individualism in religion. We have had too much of theology of the jolly miller who lived on the banks of the River Dee, who said, 'I care for nobody, no, not I, and nobody cares for me.'"

The boys when they came back from the front would not want mere singing, or billiards, diluted with religious thought, but something stronger and firmer, he asserted, and with all his heart he believed we wanted more religion, but a real, living, simple religion.—London Observer.

Speed of the Turtle.

The slowness of the turtle again is proved, but he gets there just the same. While hunting on Dantz run in Delmar township, L. R. Van Horn found a large mud turtle. He noticed a steel plate on its back, which bore the inscription "V. D. G., 4-15-13." It was supposed that these were the initials of V. D. Gross of Tyndaghton, and Van Horn wrote him a letter.

He replied that he had found the turtle in Pine creek at Tyndaghton and put on the plate and turned him loose. In two years and seven months his turtle has traveled 18 miles. Van Horn has had a copper plate made with his initials and address, and he will send the turtle to some point in the North Tier and have it liberated.—Wellsboro (Pa.) Correspondent New York Sun.

In Darkest San Francisco.

A superb marble figure of Christ typifying "Christianity Emerging From Paganism," the work of a famous foreign artist, exhibited at the Panama exposition, was offered as a gift to the city of San Francisco. The women of that city raised $4,000 to meet the cost of transportation and material, but the park commissioners refused the gift on the ground that "the subject was a religious one."—Leslie's.

HOW CATARRH IS CONTRACTED

Mothers are sometimes so thoughtless as to neglect the colds which their children contract. The inflammation of the mucous membrane, at first acute, becomes chronic and the child has chronic catarrh, a disease that is seldom cured and that may prove a life's burden. Many persons who have this loathsome disease will remember having had frequent colds at the time it was contracted. A little forethought, a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy judiciously used, and all this trouble might have been avoided. Obtainable everywhere.

NEED OF SYMPATHY

MATTER THAT MAKES FOR HAPPINESS IN THE HOME.

Wife Who Is Able to Make Her Husband Talk on Favorite Topic Can Always Be Sure of Holding His Interest.

One of the greatest causes of unhappiness in married life is the lack of interest in each other's doings after the irrevocable step has been taken and the newness of being always together has worn off, remarks the Detroit News-Tribune.

Then it is that unless the wife makes the efforts to please that she did in the courting days the husband will go elsewhere for amusement. Yet he is only following the natural instinct of humanity in seeking for sympathetic companionship; the fault is partly hers.

A man to be won and kept must first be attracted and then made to feel that he has a sympathy which draws him out and makes him talk about what interests him most. It is not enough to make him listen while he is being talked to. For a time that will hold him, but he will tire of always being a listener, of always giving his sympathy and receiving none.

To hold a man, a woman must understand and study him, she must not be exacting, for to expect too much only makes him feel that he wants to give less.

A man usually goes out into the world young; he leads a separate existence at an age when his sister is still surrounded by her home circle. When his work is done he has only to think, "What shall I do today that will give me the most pleasure?"

Can anyone wonder that many years of indulgence in this, coupled with a larger command of money than their sisters, should make men more selfish—should end by fixing the habit of thinking of their own pleasure so firmly in their minds that it is practically ineradicable?

It may be overpowered for a time by a strong affection and all the counter influences of courtship and early matrimony; but later, when these have ceased to be novelties and a man settles down to married life, the old habit reasserts itself.

A woman, on the contrary, is trained in a different school. When her brother or sister is out in the world earning his living, or at any rate, living a separate existence, she is usually at home with other members of the household, when she has always to consider when any plans or engagements, however trivial, have to be made.

Having thus to defer to the wishes of her relations, she is duly trained in habits of yielding to others and of unselfishly giving up her will and pleasure to them. So he in his bachelor days is duly trained to selfishness; she in her spinsterhood is equally brought up to unselfishness.
